

Dyspepsia

The stomach is in far greater danger from uric acid than any other organ; hence, dyspepsia is a most common ailment. Most people who suffer from its early symptoms foolishly neglect it. You will surely regret it if you neglect it.

Uric acid is always the cause. All through our stomach membrane, is a network of tiny blood vessels. When you eat heavy or improper foods these little blood vessels congest so that the blood stops flowing through them, and the uric acid—always in the blood—crystallizes in the congested veins, forming sharp little grains like sand. These constantly irritate the nerves, causing pains in the stomach. Artificial digestives, such as compounds of charcoal, pepsin, soda and the like, will NEVER cure stomach trouble. You MUST clear the uric acid sand out of the blood vessels. This is the ONLY way. LIFE PLANT does this! LIFE PLANT is provided especially by Nature to wash out accumulated uric acid from every part of the body. Through this power LIFE PLANT will restore your stomach to perfect condition, so that it will be a joy for you to eat and live. Our files are full of unsolicited letters proving this. Read just one:

"I have been troubled with indigestion for years. Last year the joints of my right hand became much swollen and very painful with rheumatism. Life Plant was recommended, and after taking three bottles I have no more trouble with my stomach. The pain from rheumatism is gone and the joints almost in normal condition."

THE Masquerader

By KATHERINE CECIL THURSTON,
Author of "The Circle," Etc.

Copyright, 1904, by Harper & Brothers

And it was with this conviction that he entered on the vital period of his dual career. The imminent crisis and his own share in it absorbed him absolutely. In the weeks that followed his answer to Fraide's proposal he gave himself ungrudgingly to his work. He wrote, read and planned with tireless energy. He frequently forgot to eat and slept only through sheer exhaustion. In the fullest sense of the word he lived for the culminating hour that was to bring him failure or success.

He seldom left Grosvener square in the days that followed except to confer with his party. All his interest, all his relaxation even, lay in his work and what pertained to it. His strength was like a solid wall, his intelligence was sharp and keen as steel. The moment was his, and by sheer mastery of will he put other considerations out of sight. He forgot Chilcote and forgot Lillian, not because they escaped his memory, but because he chose to shut them from it.

Of Eve he saw but little in this time of high pressure. When a man touches the core of his capacities, puts his best into the work that in his eyes stands paramount, there is little place for—and need of woman. She comes before—or after. She inspires, compensates or completes; but the achievement, the creation, is man's alone. And all true women understand and yield to this unspoken precept.

Eve watched the progress of his labor, and in the depth of her own heart the watching came nearer to actual doing than any activity she had known. She was an onlooker—on an onlooker who stood, as it were, on the steps of the arena, who, by a single forward movement, could feel the sand under her feet, the breath of the battle on her face, and in this knowledge she rested satisfied.

There were hours when Loder seemed scarcely conscious of her existence, but on those occasions she smiled in her serene way—and went on waiting. She knew that each day before the afternoon had passed he would come into his sitting room, his face thoughtful, his hands full of books or papers, and dropping into one of the comfortable, studious chairs, would ask laconically for tea. This was her moment of triumph and recompense—for the very unconsciousness of his coming doubled its value. He would sit for half an hour with preoccupied glance or with keen, alert eyes fixed on the fire, while his ideas sorted themselves and fell into line. Sometimes he was silent for the whole half hour, sometimes he commented to himself as he scanned his notes, but on other and rarer occasions he talked, speaking his thoughts and his theories aloud, with the enjoyment of a man who knows himself fully in his depth, while Eve sipped her tea or stretched peacefully at a strip of embroidery.

On these occasions she made a perfect listener. Here and there she encouraged him with an intelligent remark, but she never interrupted. She knew when to be silent and when to speak, when to merge her own individuality and when to make it felt. In these days of stress and preparation he treated her as he might have treated a younger brother—relying on her discretion, turning to her as by right for sympathy, comprehension and friendship. Sometimes as they sat silent in the richly colored, homelike room Eve would pause over her embroidery and let her thoughts spin momentarily forward—toward the point where, the burst of his ordeal passed, he must of necessity seek something beyond mere rest. But there her thoughts would inevitably break off and the blood flame quickly in her cheek.

Meanwhile Loder worked persistently. With each day that brought the crisis of Fraide's scheme nearer his activity increased—and with it an intensifying of the nervous strain. For if he had his hours of exaltation he also had his hours of black apprehension. It is all very well to exorcise a ghost by sheer strength of will, but one has also to eliminate the idea that gave it existence. Lillian Astrupp, with her unattested evidence and her ephemeral interest, gave him no real uneasiness, but Chilcote and Chilcote's possible summons were matters of graver consideration, and there were times when they loomed very dark and sinister. What if at the very moment of fulfillment—But invariably he snapped the thread of the supposition and turned with fiercer ardor to his work of preparation.

And so the last morning of his probation dawned, and for the first time he breathed freely.

He rose early on the day that was to witness his great effort and dressed slowly. It was a splendid morning. The spirit of the spring seemed embodied in the air, in the pale blue sky, in the shafts of cool sunshine that danced from the mirror to the dressing table, from the dressing table to the pictures on the walls of Chilcote's vast room. Inconspicuously with its dancing rose a memory of the distant past—a memory of long forgotten days when, as a child, he had been bidden to watch the same sun perform the same fantastic evolutions. The sight and the thought stirred him curiously, and an unlooked-for sense of youth. He drew himself together with an added touch of decision as he passed out into the corridor, and as he walked downstairs he whistled a bar or two of an inspiring, long tune.

In the morning room Eve was already waiting. She looked up, colored and smiled as he entered. Her face looked very fresh and young, and she wore a gown of the same pale blue that she had worn on his first coming.

She looked up from an open letter as he came into the room, and the sun that fell through the window caught her in a shaft of light, intensifying her blue eyes, her blue gown and the bunch of violets fastened in her belt. To Loder, still under the influence of early memories, she seemed the embodiment of some youthful ideal—something lost, sought for and found again. Realization of his feeling for her almost came to him as he stood there looking at her. It hovered about him, it tipped him, as it were, with its wings; then it rose again and soared away. Men like him—men keen to grasp an opening where their careers are concerned and tenacious to hold it when once grasped—are frequently the last to look into their own hearts. He glanced at Eve, he acknowledged the stir of his feeling, but he made no attempt to define its cause. He could no more have given reason for his sensations than he could have told the precise date upon which, coming downstairs at 8 o'clock, he had first found her waiting breakfast for him. The time when all such incidents were to stand out, each to a nicety in its appointed place, had not yet arrived. For the moment his youth had returned to him; he possessed the knowledge of work done, the sense of present companionship in a world of agreeable things; above all, the steady, quiet conviction of his own capacity. All these things came to him in the moment of his entering the room, greeting Eve and passing to the breakfast table; then, while his eyes still rested contentedly on the pleasant array of china and silver, while his senses were still alive to the fresh, earthy scent of Eve's violets, the blow's long dreaded—so slow in coming—fell with accumulated force.

"STAR-SPANGLED BANNER" IS STILL IN EXISTENCE.

New York, March 9.—Mrs. George Livingston Baker, of New Brighton, Staten Island, is authority for the statement that the star-spangled banner which flew over Fort McHenry during its bombardment, in the war of 1812, and inspired Francis Scott Key to the composition of the national ode, is now in this city.

Mrs. Baker is the granddaughter of Col. George Armstrong. The flag, she says, is the property of Eben Appleton, of this city, her brother, and has been deposited by him in the safe deposit vaults of a Broadway trust company. There has been a great deal of inquiry regarding this flag recently, which was reported as probably lost. Mrs. Baker says that it is her brother's intention to leave the flag on his death to either one of the national museums at Washington or the Massachusetts Historical Museum at Boston.

THE WEEK IN SOCIETY

ing meeting on Thursday afternoon at the Parish House of Grace Episcopal church. It was decided to invite the State Federation of Woman's clubs to Paducah in June 1908. To accomplish it the delegation from the local club to the coming State meeting in June will be especially strong.

The open meeting of the club followed the business session and was under the auspices of the Art department. The delightful talks were illustrated by beautiful stereoscopic pictures, 42 in number. Miss Compton told of "The Saint and Angel in Art" and Miss Webb of "The Madonna in Art." Mrs. David Flournoy and Miss Julia Scott sang very charmingly.

Weddings.

A pretty wedding of the week, characterized by the charm of simplicity, was that of Miss Kate Lee Richardson to Mr. Oscar Bertram Jones, of San Bernardino, Cal., on Tuesday morning at the First Baptist church. The Rev. Calvin W. Thompson performed the ceremony. Miss Courtie Puryear played the wedding music. The only attendants were the ushers: Messrs Frank Hecker, of St. Louis; Eugene B. Richardson, Paul E. Stutz, Durward Sutton W. W. Rogers, J. E. Rogers. The bride wore a pretty going-away suit of blue cloth and blue silk gloves with a blue cornflower hat and gloves to harmonize. Among the out-of-town guests present for the wedding were: Miss Helene Carroll, of St. Louis; Miss Cora Bell Underwood, of Owensboro; Mrs. Joseph Altman, of Cairo; Mr. Frank H. Hecker, of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones left at noon for San Bernardino, via St. Louis and Los Angeles. They have a host of friends in Paducah which was, also, Mr. Jones' former home.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Marcus, of Baltimore, Md., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Florence Hess, to Mr. Elbridge Palmer Bernheim, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Bernheim, of Louisville. Mr. Bernheim is a native of Paducah, where his parents lived before going to make Louisville their home. He is a nephew of Mrs. Herman Walenstein and Mrs. Jacob Walenstein, of this city, and has often visited here. He is a namesake of the late Elbridge Palmer, of Paducah and is a young man of fine business and social qualifications.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Miss Edith Smith of Hillsboro, Ohio, who has been the attractive guest of her sister, Mrs. David Cady Wright, for several months, left this week for her home. Miss Smith made many friends in Paducah.

Miss Helene Carroll, of St. Louis, and Miss Cora Belle Underwood of Owensboro are the attractive guests of Miss Cora Richardson of 320 South 3rd street. They are popular in Paducah where they have visited before. Mrs. Victor Voris and little Miss Elsie Eunice Voris left this week for Dallas, Texas, to visit Mrs. Voris' mother, Mrs. J. H. Shelley. Mrs. Voris is always the recipient of much social attention in her girlhood home, although the Lenten season may make it very informal in character.

Mr. and Mrs. Murrell F. Buckner, of Dallas, Texas, are the guests of Mr. Buckner's mother, Mrs. James Buckner of Jefferson and Eighth streets. Mr. and Mrs. Buckner are here on route from New York where Mr. Buckner has been in the interest of an extensive copper mine in Mexico in which he is interested. They formerly lived in Paducah and are very popular here.

Miss Ethel Brooks left on Thursday for Indianapolis to attend a house party at the home of Miss Florence Schraeder. Miss Anita Wood of Wichita, Kan., who visited Miss Brooks with Miss Schraeder this winter is also of the party. Miss Schraeder gave a party-dance on Friday evening at her home in honor of her guests. Miss Wood and Miss Schraeder will accompany Miss Brooks home and will be her guests for Easter.

Removing the Blot.

A woman was trying to lift a big blot of ink from a letter with a piece of blotting paper, with the usual result of making the blot bigger, and uglier than it was at first. "Let me show you how to do that," said her friend. "I learned the trick at a stationer's shop in London last year. You just moisten the corner of the blotting first, to get it started, and then apply it to the ink spot. There! Isn't it wonderful how clean it takes it all up!"—New York Sun.
